

Kane Lee
Chief Content Officer
Baobab Studios

Emmy Award-winning producer Kane Lee heads content development and strategy for Baobab. At the virtual-reality studio, his groundbreaking works include the 2017 Emmy Award winner Invasion!, featuring Ethan Hawke, the 2017 Unity Vision Award-winner Asteroids!, with Elizabeth Banks, and the highly anticipated VR experience Rainbow Crow, starring John Legend. Lee spearheaded the first-ever adaptation of VR IP (Invasion!) into a traditional Hollywood feature film. He has long worked at the frontier of technology and media. He is lead producer of the 20th Century Fox animated feature, The Dam Keeper, based upon the Academy Award-nominated short, and is on the producing teams for projects ranging from The School for Good and Evil at Universal Pictures, Frozen, and Jennifer Lee's The Way Between, to the award-winning children's series Spooksville. Previously Vice President, Development and Production for Jane Startz Productions, Lee worked on Horton Hears A Who!, Ice Age: The Meltdown, and Robots, among other films. He is an interactive media advisor for the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.
