Dear friends,

We come together at a time when U.S.-China relations are at their most challenging point in decades. Our conference lineup has been curated to cover complex, and at times contentious, topics by expert speakers with diverse points of view. Our aim, as is the mission of Asia Society, is to help bridge understanding and to navigate shared futures for Asia and the world.

At last year's conference, in one of his last public appearances, our Honorary Chair and former Secretary of State George Shultz stressed the importance of dialogue and that "trust is the coin of the realm." He did a joint interview with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who warned that, "conflict between the [U.S. and China] will tear the world apart and cooperation requires both of us to learn a new approach to the idea of global influence." Kurt Campbell also joined us in a panel discussion, just as he was appointed White House Coordinator for the Indo-Pacific. These videos on our website have garnered 200,000 YouTube views.

At today's conference, we will see how far we have come and assess the U.S.-China relationship one year into the Biden administration, where we are with obstacles and opportunities in technology and business, and what the future holds for China's Xi Jinping. This conference is the final event of our eight-part Seeking Truth Through Facts U.S.-China Program Series, where we have strived to use data and facts to continuously cover tough topics including: Intellectual Property in the Crossfire, The Quad and Potential for Future Cooperation, Belt and Road, Tech Policy, Energy Generation and Storage, Great Power Politics, and China Strategy Post-Cold War.

We are very grateful to all of our experts from across the globe for joining us to speak on the record. For this conference, we were really excited to host participants in-person and had plans in place to convene 23 speakers, with 10 of them flying in. However, with the rapid rise of omicron cases and the aim of keeping everyone safe, our all-day conference is entirely online again for the second year in a row.

This event would not have been possible without our devoted Advisory Board, our dedicated returning and new sponsors, and our wonderful team – all of whom are listed in this program. Thank you!

We eagerly anticipate the active and enthusiastic participation of our members and audience throughout the day – and thank you for starting 2022 with us at our fourth annual virtual Future of U.S. and China conference.

Best,

Margaret Conley
